Marchers ‘Aren’t Against Soldiers’

“We are not opposing our soldiers in Viet Nam, who are only doing their duty. We are opposing the policies that are being made in this war,” one of the coordinators in Saturday’s peace march in Tucson said today.

“We have seen the movies — in the WATER — and I saw a movie in Viet Nam where I am a soldier,” said Mary E. McDonald, senior physics student at the University of Arizona.

The Peace March organizers, students at the University of Arizona, set up an anti-war demonstration in front of the university. The demonstration was held in response to the Vietnam War, which they believe is the cause of the problems in Viet Nam.

A sense of morale seems to be high among the organizers, who showed signs of determination and determination.

The coordinators of the Peace March are: Mary E. McDonald, senior physics student; Mary E. Martin, junior mathematics student; and John E. Thompson, junior chemistry student.

Heritage Foundation Elects

The Tucson Heritage Foundation, a non-profit organization, announced the election of new officers at its annual meeting on Saturday. The new officers elected at the meeting were: William A. Small, president; and Mrs. Betty L. Johnston, secretary.

The treasurer is: Gerald M. Sheehan, Jr., chairman of the board; and Mrs. Mabel E. Sheehan, treasurer.

The new officers will be installed at the annual meeting.

The foundation was formed to stimulate the study of the history of Tucson and its people.
